

Your Neighborhood Is Now Made of Blocks

You wake up one morning and your entire neighborhood has turned into a Minecraft world. Everything is made of blocks — the trees, your house, even your dog. What do you do first? What do you build? What dangers appear as night falls?

The Time I Was Really Proud of Myself

Think of a moment when you did something hard and it worked out. Maybe you earned a Cub Scout badge, finished a tough LEGO set, beat a level you'd been stuck on, or learned something new. Describe exactly what happened, how long it took, what was hard about it, and how you felt when you finally pulled it off.

Block World

I knew something was wrong the second I looked out my bedroom window and saw that the oak tree in our front yard had turned into a perfect cube. My dog was barking at it from the porch, and even he looked blocky — like someone had rebuilt him overnight out of brown and tan squares.
